

Print

PUBLIC schools in NSW are being forced to heat new classrooms with unflued gas heaters under the schools building program, despite health warnings that emissions from the heaters pose a risk to asthmatic children and can cause respiratory problems.

Read the full article: School heaters pose health risk for children , The Australian, April 15, 2010

TV

Channel 10 5pm news, 15 March